1. Artist Christina Graziano lives and works in Denver, creating unique pieces from walnut and cherry. The Big Totem Cutting Board by Blade and Knoll has a woodburned design and a carved triangle handle on the top for displaying, hanging, or carrying. It's finished with a mineral oil, beeswax, and carnauba wax mixture. $150. bladeandknoll.com

2. The Artist Duffel is just one of the functional carryalls created by artist Grason Ratowsky of Denver-based BARE. Its line of upcycled products are made from repurposed burlap sacks and vinyl billboards. $565. baremade.com

3. Aurora resident Katrina Boldry pioneered a dog safety harness that is used throughout the world and creates top-quality collars and leashes from American leather. Her company, Bold Lead Designs, also offers indestructible chew toys made from naturally-shed Rocky Mountain elk antlers. Quick Release Collars start at $32.99. boldleaddesigns.com

4. Midwestern transplant Pattie Lee Becker turns her vibrant ink and colored-pencil drawings into stunning pillows, scarves and archival prints from her Denver studio. Powers of Ten Rectangular Pillows, $110. pattieleebecker.com ▸
